Labor Day-Outlook Cloudy

will celebrate its special day, and perhaps use the occasion for a stocktaking. If it does, it will note, first, that the strike in the province's major industry is inflicting record losses on all concerned-and hitting the economy of British Columbia what may be a crippling blow.

Labor's assessment, if it is undertaken, will also give consideration to public reaction toward unions. Partly influenced by an unfair association with racketeering in some centres of the United States, the reaction does not appear favorable, according to a recent sampling of opinion conducted in southern British Columbia and on Vancouver Island. The B.C. Newsletter for September reports that 46 per cent of those interviewed in the private, professional survey tended to blame the unions for current labor troubles. Even in households of union members a reported 40 per cent were inclined to place responsibility for unsatisfactory conditions on poor leadership, excessive wage demands, unnecessary strikes and the assumption of too much power by the unions. Furthermore there was no wholesale inclination to blame the government, politics and legislation, including the controversial Bill 43, for existing conditions of unrest-only about 18 per cent placing responsibility in those quarters.

Meanwhile prospects of an early settlement of the IWA strike, affecting over 26,000 men and estimated to have cost $25,000,000 in lost wages, seemed "up in the air". In certain centres that spelled severe hardship and domestic misery as household savings melted. Nor was the injury limited to the individual families whose bread-winners were idle. The effects-flowed out through the communities and into the entire economic bloodstream of British Columbia.

The immediate difficulties are apparent. The longer term results being forecast. The prospects are not bright. Lumber prices in

ON MONDAY LABOR HERE the Eastern United States are down. Other markets, principally overseas, have shown an unhappy ability to get along without British Columbia shipments. Buyers in foreign countries are not waiting anxiously for this province to return to produc-They have found supplies elsewhere.

In view of the softened export market-and the difficulties to be encountered when our producers seek re-entry-it appears doubtful that the eventual end of the present strike will mark a return to 100 per cent capacity production in British Columbia. Local and Canadian demands will obviously be a stimulating factor but that vast export business which means so much to successful woods operations will have shrunk

In the fight to recover British Columbia's former position in the world market, price will be a vital factor. Labor can have no doubts about its position when production costs are too high for available customers.

If labor undertakes a stocktaking at this time it will also see a more optimistic side to the picture. Employment, up to the time of the IWA strike, was running ahead of last year. Mining and construction industries were calling for more men. Woods operations in the interior, not directly curtailed by coast troubles, were going to Retail sales have been climbing, according to the latest available figures.

These are cheerful indices of a potentially bright future for an expanding British Columbia. They nevertheless are dimmed by the cloud hovering over the woods industries. From the forests this province collects half the wealth it produces. When the outlook is not bright, particularly for export sales, British Columbia's economic health is not assured.

That uncertainty spells out a very definite message for labor-something which will not be ignored by those assessing prospects on Labor Day, 1959.

The Unseen Thief

ON THE BASIS OF THE OFFIcial figures of August 1, it costs $126.40 to buy food, clothing and other living items which would have cost $100 ten years ago. The $100 you put in the bank, or into a government bond, in 1949, will buy you only about $79 worth of goods

Obviously, everybody who has invested money in bank accounts, life insurance, annuities and bonds has lost money over the past decade, just as if he had put it into a poor investment. Pensioners and others on incomes which have not changed with the changing value of the dollar are poorer by one-fifth. Com-pared with 1939, instead of 1949, the attrition has been much worse. trend continues-and at the moment there is no indication that it will everyone's dollar will be worth another fifth less. The proper reply to this situation is to make a national effort to curb the inflationary trend.

The so-called tight money policy one step in this direction. The shortage of money for loans could be relieved immediately if the Bank of Canada were to put large amounts of currency into circulation. Interest rates would fall and borrowing would be accelerated. But almost inevitably prices would rise, the dollar would depreciate in value and the process which has robbed Canadians of a fifth of their savings over the past ten years would be speeded What of the future? Vancouver's Festival Analysis

VICTORIANS INTERESTED IN Y the cultural development of British Columbia will have noted with some distress the adverse financial report given recently on the Vancouver Festival, At the close of the summer season the organization was far deeper in the red than had been expected. Offsetting this unhappy condition to some extent has been the decision of festival directors to correct some of the faults which led to serious financial loss, to carry on with the festival and to look forward confidently to continued support of this excellent undertaking.

Primarily the leaders of the festival society have in mind three changes. They suggest that the festival be shortened, that its events be selected on the basis of broader appeal to the public and that the price of tickets be reduced to encourage larger audiences.

The committee is acting wisely in its efforts to popularize the fes-The events in Vancouver are show business and show business survives only on public support. The

Challenges IWA

The pamphlet just issued from Vancouver by IWA entitled "The Operators Can Pay", is false and misleading in many respects. Every diagram used is greatly exaggerated in picture form. Each purports to show increases in figures in the accompaning diagrams. Taking as an example, dwelling starts 1958, 1,204,000 in North America; 1959, 1,400,000 starts which is nearly 10 per cent increase whereas the picture diagram shows 90 per cent increase which could create a distinctly wrong impression on the reader.

In the same pamphlet IWA states

"prices for lumber have risen 25 per cent 1958 to 1959." The average prices received by 36 lumber companies were as follows: 1955, $73.00; 1956, $73.73; 1957, 67.37; 1958, 63.50, plus 25 per cent increase in 1958 figure would be $79.38 instead of $63.50; 1959, 64.11 (six

Surely the above two examples are enough to show how false and mislead-

AFTER THE VISITS ARE OVER

The Cold Hard Job of Negotiation Will Still Lie Ahead

"... But I thought she was starting JUNIOR High this year ...?"

WASHINGTON: There seems to be some difference of opinion, or at least of emphasis, between London and Washington about when to hold a summit meeting. But is this the time to decide that question? Will it not be better to leave the question open until the second Eisenhower - Khrushchev parley, which will take place when the President visits Moscow? For a summit meeting has come to mean a formal conference of the heads of government in order to negotiate and to make decisions on the great issues. On the other hand, the Eisenhower-Khrushchev talks, like the Macmillan-Khrushchev talks which preceded them last winter, like a de Gaulle-Khrushchev talk which could possibly follow them, are a freer They are not burdened with the responsibility of making written decisions. They can be exploratory and tentative. For the present the talks are likely to be better, to be more candid and more interesting if there is no pressure of a dateline which has to be met.

Since there is no urgent necessity for decisions in Western Europe, since there is nothing intolerable to either side in the status quo, an unhurried diplomacy, which is desirable, is also possible.

The informal summit parleys, as distinguished from the formal summit conference, are a new development in the diplomacy of the cold war.

Until the past few months, until in fact Mr. Macmillan's visit to Moscow, the rich clients, the heads of government, would sign when they advised ment, would sign when they advised them to sign.

They were to scrutinize the fine print and the semi-colons before their clients met to sign the papers and to make cere-monial speeches and to drink the toasts.

This theory suited President Truman, who has always felt, it appears, that as a freshman President in 1945 he burned his fingers at the summit meeting with Stalin in Potsdam.

It also suited President Eisenhe as long as he had as his lawyer the dominating figure of John Foster Dulles.

But the theory that the lawyers, namely the Foreign Ministers, could be the prime negotiators was workable only for the United States and only as long as Mr. Dulles was in command. It was never workable for the Soviet Union where the Foreign Minister is not even member of the ruling oligarchy. It does not fit West Germany where in foreign policy Dr. Adenauer is para-mount and alone, nor does it suit France where Gen. de Gaulle is para-mount, and it does not really suit Great Britain where the example and tradition of Churchill, with his predilection for summit meetings is so strong.

The post-war American theory that international contracts should be nego tiated by lawyers in the office of Secretary of State had its last trial at the Geneva conference a few months ago. It proved to be an exercise in frustration and, even before it was con-cluded, the President and Secretary Herter had become convinced that a new approach would have to be tried.

Under the old theory the Foreign Ministers negotiated contracts for the heads of government to sign. In the new approach the heads of government conduct parleys to determine whether they can find ground on which they can instruct the Foreign Ministers to nego

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The idea of frequent meetings at the summit, with the momentousness of these meetings deflated, rests upon a philosophy of international relations with which many Americans disagree.

They believe that diplomatic course with another government con-stitutes moral approval of its record and

There is a section of the American people who feel that in receiving Mr. Khrushchev in the United States nation is endorsing the record of the Communist party in the Soviet Union. They find this morally revolting. But they are taking an inflated view of the significance of the visit.

All that we are endorsing by reing Mr. K. is our own willingness, if he is also willing, to look for paths which might lead to a truce in the cold war.

Mr. K. will draw great crowds because there is enormous curiosity to see him and to see what he is like. But there is no need to exaggerate the im-portance of all that. For when it is all over, and when it is the morning after, the cold hard job of concrete negotia-tion will still lie ahead of us.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

September, and the High Adventure of Delivering Groceries

THE days are shorter now, much shorter. So are the months and the weeks and the years. They seem to be infected by the speed of life; the tempo of the jet-age. Maybe the Space-age. Time was when the years were simply endless; when you could hardly rememtime it started again in the autumn. That ould be September which I always thought to be the nicest month of the whole year. crackly August days which had covered the hedges in dust were gone and early mornings were something that a small boy could feel so that his whole insides sort of tightened up. But he couldn't possibly express the feeling.

You could race outside and actually splash the dew off the grass with your new blakey-shod school shoes. And gossamer spider webs floated, laden with tiny dewdrops, across your face as you ran by the fences.

Yes. September was different. There was no sense of urgency about it but it was still a month for adventure; for dangerous living.

If you owned a steel buggy tire hoop you were mighty lucky. You could race along full pelt and make the steel ring as you banged it with a stick. Maybe you had made a lath sword that you could push through a loop on your pants; maybe you owned a gun with a wood butt and a windowblind roller for a barrel; maybe you just had a few agates in your pocket, picked up on Bowker's Beach. Maybe you just had your hands in your pockets and your head in the clouds—not really clouds, but clouds that could roll into all sorts of wonder-ful shapes and then dissolve and form new vast pictures in the sky. It didn't matter what you had because a boy's world was in his head and only another boy could interpret his sometimes utterly crazy actions, his wild whoops and sudden silences.

You would never think it if you visited it today but Fernwood Road from about Gladstone to Edmonton Road where it ended in our day was jam-packed with high adventure

tures was to go on a Saturday morning delivering groceries with Albert Clark whose brother, George, kept a store at Centre and North roads (now Denman

Mother made jam sandwiches and packed some cake in a bag for lunch because this was no minor expedition. I could count on Albert producing apples and a red-white-and-blue striped bag of candies, mostly the sugary kind that sold around Christmas, but sometimes he would have licorice plugs or jelly-Maybe when George wasn't looking.

He would let me help him hitch up old Bess, a grey mare who was gentle enough but a little jittery. She nearly went crazy when Dr. Hart whizzed by in his Oldsmobile.)

She hauled a two-wheeled cart, not wagon, and it was a sort of jiggley ide. But we each had a sack stuffed with straw and then flattened down for cushions which we really needed for it was just about an all-day drive. I guess Albert didn't get much pay or George couldn't afford to let him take a whole day, to deliver a few boxes of groceries.

Well, we jogged along Edmonton Road to Richmond and then turned toward Mount Tolmie, dropping a box here and there at farm usually getting a bag of plums or pears or apples. Then we drove right around Gordon Head, back to Cedar Hill Crossroads west to Lake Hill on Quadra and at last back home by Queens, Ridge and North roads. So you see we did really need those straw sacks.

One of the pleasant things was that Albert would talk to me just as though I were a man. I think it was a sort of sublimated form of thinking out loud and I would seldom say anything in He was a great one for theorizing.

This kind of book has one enormous advantage over the work of fiction: it does not have to be well written. the subject of the biography is interest-ing, if the autobiographer has an un-usual life history to recount, if the travels have been off the beaten track or the trip a perilous one-this by itself

Of course, a well-written account adds an extra dimension to the work, and doubles the enjoyment; if the book has shape and the writer is a master of his art-a Belloc, a Doughty, a Flem ing, a Boswell or a Maurois; a Tilman a Young then a classic is born. Ever since I became a sailing bore, agers, ancient and modern. Fortunately for those who share my tastes, there is a close affinity between sailing and book publishing. Sir Allen Lane, the "onlie begetter" of the Penguin book, is a cruising sailor, and no prizes are offered for guessing what his boat is called; Rupert Hart Davis, one of the most enterpris ing additions to the publishing ranks since 1945, has earned undying gratitude for reprinting thirty-odd sailing classics in his "Mariners' Library"; K. Adlard Coles, the father of Bluebottle's helmsman, has contributed some fine things too, under his own imprint.

At a time when we are daily ex-pecting the arrival of the courageous John Guzzwell, the names of Slocum and Gerbault should be on every lip, for when Trekka sails in her skipper will have joined the tiny and illustrious band of single-handed circumnavigators

To judge from the apathy and igbrance which characterizes the public reaction in our little seaport, a voyage round the world in a 20-foot boat by oneself is held to be insufficiently im pressive to warrant much interest. What must a man do, then, to win fame in Victoria?

How many Canadians know where time I mentioned Slocum's name in print I had an interesting letter from a local resident who remembered meet-ing the gallant Joshua in Cape Town, 50 years ago. My correspondent added, "But who is the Captain Voss you speak of?" This of the man who must be the most widely-known of all who ever lived in Victoria.

Why do we not do more to bring why do we not do more to bring to our children's attention the outstanding feats of their compatriots? Would not the voyages of Slocum and Vose make better "set books" for our junior high school students than the unbearably tedious "Black Arrow"? Are you not amazed at the reception given to the suggestion, that Guzzwell and the mee suggestion that Guzzwell and the men of the Cambrian Salvor be feted when they return? When a community ceases to pay homage to the courage of its citizens, whether amateur or professional, it might as well give up the

The odd little thing now and then manages to creep into the news. For instance, we have the widely publicized pronouncement of the Lord Chief Justice of England, at this time the honored chief guest of the Canadian Right Honorable Lord Parker of Waddington, is one of the most ancient Institutions in our heritage. He is, as it were, the apex, the very embodiment of the common law of over half the world. And though he may not have the authority of a police court psychiatrist or a social worker in this great democracy of ours, he must nevertheless be credited with a certain experience of humanity in the raw, and a modicum of wisdom painfully acquired from many years of presiding over the disputes and foibles of mankind.

Lord Parker (doubtless in an unguarded moment) let it be known that he favored the panking of the young offender. Perhaps I should have called it corporal punishment, but spanking it is nevertheless. The birch rod, said the Lord Chief Justice, is most salutary when applied to the appropriate anatomical protuberance of the juvenile offender. While it does no physical harm, it has an excellent humiliating effect. It stings up the backside and destroys dignity.

We are often told by those who profess to know, that corporal punishment is degrading; it damages the psyche, they say, Well, what of it? If the perpetrators of the wretched hooliganism which took place at the carnival last week had had their psyches properly damaged, this outbreak of arson and mayhem would not have occurred. It is to be hoped that the culprits will be brought to book, and their psyches, in due course of law, seriously harmed.

We might even get some good citizens

Meanwhile, the Lord Chief Justice, whose forerunner corrected the youthful indis-cretions of Henry the Fith, has lent his powerful voice to that of those who cry in wilderness for spanking our errant youth. As that eminent child psychologist, Dr. Potter, said:

"Reason with them. Adopt a conversational tone. Man to man. "Then WHACK 'EM!"

Economical Bungalow Small but Efficient consideration, this three-bedroom bungalow is worthy of consideration. All frills and extras have been eliminated but the design provides good basic living accommodation.

Of frame and brick veneer construction, the house is particularly suited to a narrow lot with the gable end facing the street. The entrance hall is ample and provides access to the kitchen and basement stairs as well as the living room. Conveniently divided, the basement has a large area suitable for a future recreation room. There is plenty of cup-board and counter space in the kitchen which also contains a dining area.

The total floor area is 852 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 35 feet by 24 feet four inches. Working drawings for the house, known Working as Design 289, are available from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at mini-

IF YOU LIKE HUMMINGBIRDS TRY EDGING OF CORALBELLS

Heuchera, or coralbell, is unsurpassed as an edging plant.

It is used also in rock gardens.

Most varieties bloom nearly continuously from May through the summer.

No flowers are more attractive to the dainty humming birds. The blossoms are coral pink or crimson. Also there is a white variety.

The wiry flower stems are held 12 to 18 inches high above a low mat of geranium-like leaves.

Planting time for coralbells is either spring or fall. Spring is preferable. Old clumps are divided every three years.

Soil should be enriched with rotted humus or leafmold before planting.

Not Costly

The desire of today's nev home buyers for "something different" has created a mar ket situation in B.C. which begs for increased use of brick and other masonry products.

This beckoning market can mean profitable new business for builders and architects if it is encouraged by providing prospective buyers with comaccurate information about the advantages of brick Or the opportunity can be allowed to pass. This blossoming buyers' interest in brick can once again be frustrated by the reply which has become almost habitual with too many contractors and architects: "Sure you can have brick, but it will cost you a lot more." Such a reply can be justified by only two things-mis-information or a reluctance to change an established and familiar method of building.

The advantages, both immediate and long-term, of brick in basic house construction are Armed with accurate information, it should be pos-sible for architects, builders and buyers to make a reward-ing new appraisal of the place of masonry products in home building.

If the seed germinates within 12 days, as it should, it will still be well past the target date of mid-month.

To get a fairly even distribution of seed, divide the lawn area into squares or oblongs of equal size, and then divide the seed into as many equal portions as there are seed into the surface soil is the usual prac-tice, but it requires a fine-toothed rake and a great deal of judgement to keep the seed evenly dispersed.

On sandy soils and light loams rolling can be beneficial. Where clay predominates it is not so good because it compacts the top layer and causes excessive cracking under the light sprinklings which must follow in new ones are to find a home order to obtain rapid germin-

Rocca became big business in 1953, when he pinned Primo Carnera in one minute and 10 seconds in Caracas, Venezuela, before more than 100,000 people who paid a record $180,000.

Even on these hot nights the toughest ticket to obtain in New York is when Rocca and Miguel Perez wrestle anybody. They formed a tag team partnership in 1957 and were promptly adopted by New York Puerto Ricans, now the most fanatic grappling addicts in the country. They hung out the standing room only sign at Madison Square Garden 21 times. On several occasions the customers have rioted 21 times. On several occasions the customers have rioted they suspected that their guys were being mistreated. You can't get steamed up any more than that.

horticultural and livestock exhibits.

The fair opened with events for young people of 4H. Clubs, and a spectacular western horse show was scheduled for later today.

Members of the junior farm clubs with their animals, which included calves, goats and rabbits, competed for honors in judging and demonstration competitions.

The day has been especially set aside for them—while Mosday will be devoted mainly to competitions for professional farmers.

Among the main features of the fair are the garden and kitchen craft exhibits in the Agricultural Hall.

The exhibits represent the best fruits, vegetables and flowers grown in the Greater Victoria area.

The fair's big day will be Monday, when it will be of-ficially opened by Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes. The big attractions will include Highland dances and a ctacular English riding show, a popular event with

For people who are interested in home cooking, some of the finest cakes, pies and bread will be on view. Com-petition in these classes is keen this year.

The fair is offering prizes totalling more than $7,000. The main awards will go to winning cattle breeders who have brought in stock from all parts of Vancouver Island. The sheep and Holstein entries this year are exceptionally good.

Two Churches Holding Back On Divorce

VANCOUVER (CP) - The Anglican and Roman Catholic churches are the biggest stumbling blocks to a reasonable divorce law in Canada, a Kingston, Ont. lawyer said Thursday.

The two churches "both oppose divorce because it's against their dogma that marriage is indissoluble." Henry Cartwright, a specialist in family law, said in an interview while attending the Canadian Bar Association convention.

"Even if we accept the extremely dubious claim that the early Christian church did up-hold the indissolubility of marriage, it's still a religious dogma that the churches are throat, whether we accept it

Mr. Cartwright now is pre paring a book on divorce laymen. He said Canadian divorce laws are based "purely on physical grounds adultery for a divorce and impotence for annulment."

"We completely ignore the spiritual and mental aspects of marriage."

Last Fling for Summer!

Summertime has almost ended! In a few days school clothes, books and lunchspails will be taken from cupboards and shelves as once again bells in Victoria schools ring out calling children to the hallowed halls of learning. But wait . . . there's still a little time to enjoy summer's last pleasures. Whether it be a picnic, fun in the back garden or relaxing with a book, children still have some freedom . . . their last fling for summer!

Arranged By JUDY NICHOLSON
Women's Dept.

Photos By
and
IRVING STRICKLAND

Picking flowers for their mother and making most of the last few days before school starts are the two sweet little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Smith of Murray Drive. Kneeling is Nancy, 6, who enters Craigflower School for her first year, and Robyn, 4, who will be attending kindergarten this year.

Rocking horses aren't for wintertime fun only anymore. The garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. P. O'Grady on Windsor Road is always crowded with toys and games so their own and the neighbors children can have fun in the sun. Pretty Clodagh O'Grady sits atop the horse while her two little friends, Nigel Carter and Carol Smith, rock-it. All three children will start back to school next week.

The beautiful seaside home of Mr. and Mrs. T. D'Arcy McGee on Sea View Road makes a wonderful setting for last days of summer playtime for their four children. Pictured with bicycles are two year-old Tim at left, who is entering the Greater Victoria Nursery School, and Kathy, six years old, and sister, Margot, eight, who with five-year-old Gordon are students at St. Patrick's School.

What fun it is to pack a picnic lunch, especially when the destination for this outdoor pleasure is a nearby beach or park. Stocking their basket with lots of goodies all little people enjoy, are the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Haddon of Killarney Road, Michael. 12, at centre; Rosemary, 10, at right, and Jonathan, 8, holding the family pet, Junior. Three-year-old Mark, at far left, is their cousin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eoin Ruthven of Brentwood.

These five children have had the most exciting summer. Theirs has been one of travel, adventure, space ships, animals and fairies, through reading. They are just a few of the many Victoria children who are members of the summer reading club at the Victoria Public Library. It is nothing to these children to read up to 45 books each during the summer months. Seated at a table in the children's department at the library are from left, Helen Proctor, 11 years old, and her sister, Anne Proctor, 13; Carolyn Ashmore, 12; Collin Ashmore, 8, and Kim Gage, 7.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Clean, Dry Lubricant Fixes Sticking Drawers, Zippers By PENNY SAVER

Got a zipper that doesn't zip (unless you yank and pull)? Windows stuck, drawers unmanageable? And you working gals—how about that grinding file cabinet drawer, those squeaking chair casters?

Penny's found a gem of a jubicant that does all the little jobs around the office and home—without fuss, muss, grime or grease. It's a tiny plastic bottle filled with a jubicating powder. One squeeze and our puffs a little of the colorless powder—to get everything running smoothly again in a flash.

Price is 39 cents. Don't forget to use a puff for squeaking hinges, stiff door latches. And watch it, or the gov in the little volent Association, bazaar tea. home Mrs. B. Whitehead, 927 Wollaston Street, Tuesday, 8 p.m. hinges, stiff door latches. And watch it, or the soy in the family will make off with it to take squeaks out of bicycle saddle springs, stiff gears. I moseyed through an automobile accessories shop today. Found it full of ideas for women.

Stained and grimy upholstery making you ashamed of the family charlot? There's a special car upholstery cleaner that's just made to get the inside of the car looking brand new again with a minimum of fuss.

Cleaner comes in plastic spray bottle, with brush for cleaning ceiling upholstery, sides and rugs. For leather, vinyl and nylon, cleaner just sprays on, wipes off clean. For fabric, brush it in. Works wonders on windows, too.

Big bottle of the cleaner, with brush costs $1.98.

Rust remover for aluminum, copper and chrome was another item I saw. Originally designed for car trim, it works wonders on porcelain sinks, refrigerator, out-door furniture. Takes out all the yellow stains.

Rust remover cleans and polishes shiny metals, and also leaves a transparent film to prevent further rusting and tarnishing.

Large size tube costs 89 cents.

STRUGGLING to drag his 17-foot cruiser clear of the still angry waves Friday was Glen Grant, 4863 Cordova Bay Road (at right). Assisted by friends he rolled the craft up the beach. Thousands of dollars damage was caused to boats as the 30-knot wind and high waves tore pleasure craft from their moorings and flung them on beaches. Some 10 boats were reported beached in the Cordova Bay area and an unofficial report later said that 15 had been sunk at their moorings before the weather improved toward mid-afternoon. One boat was beached at Cadboro Bay. (Times Photo by Strickland.)

Threat of rain failed to hamper the time-honored Saanichton Fair—the oldest exhibition west of the Great Lakes—as large crowds turned out to view hundreds of horticultural and livestock exhibits.

The fair opened with events for young people of 4H Clubs, and a spectacular western horse show was scheduled for later today.

Members of the junior farm clubs with their animals, which included calves, goats and rabbits, competed for honors in judging and demonstration competitions.

The day has been especially set aside for them—while Monday will be devoted mainly to competitions for professional farmers, and features of the fair are the garden and kitchen craft exhibits in the Agricultural Hall.

The exhibits represent the best fruits, vegetables and flowers grown in the Greater Victoria area.

"The fruits and vegetables are of exceptionally high quality this year," said one official. "I also have never seen so many entries."

The fair's big day will be Monday, when it will be of-ficially opened by Defence Minister G. R. Pearkes.

The big attractions will include Highland dances and a spectacular English riding show, a popular event with For people who are interested in home cooking, some of the finest cakes, pies and bread will be on view. Com-petition in these classes is keen this year.

The fair is offering prizes totalling more than $7,000.

The main awards will go to winning cattle breeders who have brought in stock from all parts of Vancouver Island. The sheep and Holstein entries this year are exa general meeting Sept. 16. Letters advising of the spe-cial meeting are going out this Piggott proposes to operate Victoria's Western Hockey League franchise in this city. Decision to sell was reached Decision to sell was reached at an early hour this morning, following an emergency meet-ing between club directors, league president Al Leader and Mr. Piggott. Directors unanimously recommended that the Cougars be sold for $25,000, subject to approval by the shareholders. Piggott has taken an option to buy, effective the day following the reneral meeting.

lowing the general meeting.

The $25,000 price tag represents the assets of the club in league deposits ($8,400), players ($14,000 estimated) and incidental office furniture, etc.

CLEAR OFF DEBTS

On the other side of the ledger, the club has debts of $25,000, the majority of them local.

Sale of the club will enable it to clean up all obligations. "We really haven't much choice," one director commented.

Club president Dr. Andrew Reid, who recently returned from overseas, called Friday night's meeting. He said toda; that, if the deal is apmoved club auditor Gordon proved, club auditor Gordon Holms has been authorized to

FIVE BAD YEARS

A series of "crash" meetings of directors, all last week, culminated in this morning's decision to sell.

For the past five years the Cougars have lost money—about $45,000 in the past two

"We had two very bad blows," president Reid told The Times. "One was the death of Fred

Hutchinson. We have missed his good management. It has been proven that a group of businessmen cannot run a hockey club as a part time job. "Second, our support from the Boston Bruins has been disappointing. We didn't get good players when we needed them."
